Note: We do not collect or resale any user data, all user data is used internally for internal systems and account management functions. While some vendors such as google ads may use some tracking, we make efforts not to use vendors for services of which may track users. For example, we do not use Google Analytics, instead we use Plausible, a lightweight analytics company that maintains users anonymity and does not resell data it collect and report to us.

We are always updating and improving our services, we hope you will decide to revisit our site and try our services again in the future.
